Doings at Ottawa.

Everyone is just now on the tip of expectation, looking for the news from Ottawa that is to decide the fate of the Macdonald Administration. The newspapers of this city pay for telegraphic news from Ottawa, as well as from Washington, New Orleans or Memphis, but while we are almost daily inundated with dispatches from every hole and corner of the States, of no earthly interest to British Columbian readers, there appears to be special care taken that not a scrap of news from the capital of the Dominion 'shall cross the wires but such as come through private sources, and are paid extra for. If a murder takes place in New Orleans, or a street fight between a pair of roughs in New York city, we are duly apprised of the fact, with all the disgusting particulars; but although the Parliament of Canada has now been in session for a fortnight, and events are there transpiring fraught with the deepest interest to the people of this Province, the telegraph has not given us the faintest intimation of news from that quarter, save what came in the way of private telegrams, and charged for accordingly. The Telegraph Company doubtless consider this a legitimate method of doing business, to extort the utmost dollar from newspaper publishers they can command, and give them in return for their money just as little news of interest to their readers as they can possibly help. Up to the present time no news has been received as to result of the debate on Mr. Mackenzie's motion, condemning the Government for its course in relation to the Hastings charge, but it may come now at any moment. From the dispatches already received, there is very good reason to fear that the days of the Macdonald Government are numbered, or at least that the vote on Mackenzie's motion will go against them. Whether a vote adverse to the Government would lead to a Ministerial resignation, or to a dissolution of the House, is uncertain. No doubt Sir John Macdonald would recommend the latter course, but whether the Governor-General would act upon the advice of a Minister-trustee that had been defeated by a vote of the House, is very questionable, and more particularly under the circumstances which had led to their defeat. However the vote may turn out, neither side of the House will have much to boast of, so far as a working majority is concerned. It is not unlikely, therefore, even if Mr. Mackenzie should be called upon to form a Government, that he will advise the Governor-General to dissolve the House, hoping to strengthen his hands by a direct appeal to the people. British Columbians can scarcely feel otherwise than to regret the defeat of Sir John Macdonald, should such an event really happen. From him they had reason to expect much, from Mackenzie very little. The policy of the one was a bold progressive one, that of the other, if their future actions should agree with their past utterances, will be the very opposite. Therefore, viewing the master from a purely selfish standpoint, and entirely apart from the question as to whether they have or have not been guilty of conduct to merit dismissal from office, we cannot help but feel that British Columbia will suffer both loss and disappointment should Sir John's Administration go out of office at this particular juncture of our affairs. It will certainly delay, for a year, if not longer, the commencement of the railway, and this alone would be a very serious drawback to the prosperity of this Province. We do not apprehend that the new Government would attempt to ignore the agreement made by their predecessors with the Government of this Province, although they might delay its fulfillment in the time agreed upon. On the other hand, in order to stand well in the estimation of British Columbians, and secure the support of their representatives, they might suddenly become oblivious to all their past professions of hostility to the railway policy of their predecessors, and take the work in hand themselves and push it through with all the vigor they could command. Let us hope such will be the case, should fortune so favor them as to place them in possession of the reins of office.

Marshal Basaine's Record.

Previous to the war so disastrous to France and so destructive to the military reputation of her chief, Marshal Basaine's record as a soldier was a brilliant one. After finishing a severe course of study at the Ecole Polytechnique, he entered the army in 1811, when he was twenty years old, was sent to Africa in 1815, following, and serving under the command of the same general there, who distinguished himself that he was promoted to the grade of Lieutenant in 1820, and received the Cross of the Legion of Honor on the battle field for his bravery and skill. After serving in Spain in the campaigns against the Carlists, he returned to Algeria with the rank of Captain, in 1839, and took part in all the most notable events of the war there.

When the Crimean war broke out, Captain Basaine was promoted to the command of a brigade of infantry, and during the siege of Sebastopol conducted himself with such heroism as to merit honorable mention in the dispatches of Marshals Canrobert and Pelissier. He subsequently was made a Division General, and commanded the French portion of the expedition which reduced Kinburn. At the end of the war in the East, he was appointed Inspector of several regiments of infantry, and had the dignity of Commandant of the Legion of Honor conferred on him, and subsequently, in 1863, received the Grand Cross. In 1862, he took command of the Mexican expedition, succeeding General Forey, and so far as military force could effect them, was successful in attaining the objects of that ill-starred campaign.

Basaine commanded one of the main divisions of the French army, when the Franco-Prussian war commenced. Only a small portion of his command took part in the battle of Frotsch, where General Frotsch was so thoroughly defeated by the Prussian Commander Von Goben. One of the charges against the General is that he omitted to advance to Frotsch's aid in sufficient strength to be of any use.

David Green on Government street, announces that he can't be beat; Vests, coats, and pants, he'll sell cheap. In all styles and sizes he has a heap. Depart at once, his benefits to repeat. Go to Caesar mines is the cry. Resolve at Caesar's your clothes to buy; every class can be suited there. Each suit warranted not to tear. Now go while you have the cash to spare.

The Fall Assizes.

The Fall Assizes will commence this morning at 11 o'clock, before Chief Justice Begbie, Mr. Justice Crease, and Mr. Justice Gray.

The calendar for presentation is unusually light, comprising only seven indictments; one of which however is that of wilful murder against Chil-a-Chau, a Seminole Indian. This, together with the remaining six cases, have been fully reported upon in our columns and will therefore be fresh in the memory of the public.

The accused, Thomas H. Farrell, indicted for larceny, is out on bail. The evidence to be heard in the remaining cases is not of a voluminous character, both grand and petit juries will therefore congratulate themselves on an early release from their grave duties. The following is a copy of the calendar:—

John Ringwell—Unnatural offence.
William Waugh—Larceny.
Joseph Waterman—Attempted rape.
Chil-a-Chau—Wilful murder.
Thomas H. Farrell—Larceny.
George Corbe—Larceny.
Bob, (a Seminole Indian)—Assault.

"Then and Now."

The New Westminster Herald of last issue, a journal independent in its views, has an article from which we quote in respect of the progress of the country; and we might remark that it is pleasant to read observations of this sort, instead of having dinned into our ears the staff daily published by the Mainland Guardian, and the uncoated organ in this city, the Colonist, which is on the last to judge by its empty columns. The Herald writes: "Turning to the lower country, we find equally satisfactory evidence of prosperity and progress. The year has been a good one for the farmers, who have gathered an abundant crop; and in this District at least, we have had a considerable influx of settlers of the best class. Despite the prophecies of want of money which were so current a year ago, the Government has been able to undertake and carry through a large amount of public work; so that, for the first time in our history, we see an earnest effort being made to do what the people want, and to do it in the manner of which the people approve. We looked for great things from Ottawa, we have received nothing but a promise that, if left to itself, British Columbia must collapse, and in fact, too, we have been disappointed for from Provincial resources the Province is being steadily built up. To our minds, pampered with great expectations of railway and termini, and what not, the progress appears slow; but compare it with that of past years, and it will be found that it has been repaid enough to show that, under a government as liberal and progressive as the present, we have no need to look abroad for the elements of prosperity."

Tascanus—The "local weathercock" published in this city—the Colonist justly lays claim to the appellation—devotes nearly a column of a leading article in giving a scorching stab to the Cariboo Sentinel, by announcing to the public that our mountain contemporary has suspended publication—that it "is dead." Now the announcement of the proprietor of the Sentinel is to the effect, and has already appeared in the Colonist, that reasons of a private nature have compelled him to suspend publication for the winter months only. Those reasons are weighty, inasmuch as the publisher has a wife and a large family in this city, whom he has not seen for over four years; and it is to join his household in the ensuing intermission season, when business in Cariboo is almost entirely suspended, that has induced him to cease publication of his paper for the present. But the Colonist well knows that it is to injure the worldly prospects of the Sentinel that the column in question is written. The public think that were the Colonist to "suspend," which is not at all unlikely, the country would not be any loser.

POLICE COURT, YESTERDAY.—William Stephen, charged by one Susan, a Hydaburian, with breaking a door and window, appeared before Mr. Elliott yesterday, but the plaintiff not appearing, the summons was dismissed. Mr. Leung, who had been committed for trial, pleaded guilty, to stealing a box of cigars, was sentenced to one month's hard labor.

THE ISABEL, from the Sound, returned to this port at ten o'clock last night, having sailed about noon. She brought fifteen passengers, among the rest Mr. J. Stafford; also a sheep, one horse, and a large mall. The Isabel connected with the Anderson at Port Townsend.

THE PRINCE OF WALES.—The Maude left yesterday to tow in from the Roads, to the Company's wharf, the barque Prince of Wales, from London, but on account of the breeze prevailing outside, was compelled to await finer weather.

TAXPES for repairs to the Cordage and Victualling Storehouses, Esquimalt, will be received on the 11th inst. by the Naval Storekeeper, J. H. Agnes, Esq., on behalf of the Lord Commissioners of the Admiralty.

HANSON'S CARRIAGE.—Mr. J. J. Russell has imported from England for hire a fine carriage, which with a pair of show carriage horses, will shortly grace our thoroughfares. The vehicle arrived in the Prince of Wales.

CARIBOO CHARLEY has been withdrawn from the race set for the Prince of Wales Birthday. The horse has not been "scratched," as stated yesterday.
